A SOCIETY ORGANIZED.

The ladies of the First M. E. church met at the home of Mrs. T. J. McMurray, Friday afternoon, February 14th, and organized the Ladies' Auxiliary Society. A constitution was adopted and goodly numbers of names were enrolled. The meeting closed with a social hour and a cup of tea.

A preliminary meeting was held at Mrs. L. H. White's on Friday of the week before. The officers elected at that meeting were as follows: Mrs. L. H. White, President; Mrs. J. B. Hawk, 1st Vice-President; Mrs. J. M. Carson, 2nd Vice-President; Mrs. T. J. McMurray, Secretary; Mrs. E. B. Wightman, Treasurer. The next meeting will be held Friday February 28th at 2:30 o'clock at the home of Dr. Jennie Brush. All the ladies of the church are invited.

BLAINE'S MEMORY.

A Story Showing How Well Developed Was Its Power.

A talent for remembering names and faces is a most convenient one, especially for a man in public life. Few men have it in greater measure than had Mr. Blaine. There are a thousand stories of his wonderful readiness in recalling persons, and here is one not before in print:

In the early sixties he was traveling in a sleeping car through Canada. Deep in the Canadian forest the engine broke down, and there was a delay of several hours. A little girl of five years was a fellow passenger. Mr. Blaine made friends with the child and to pass the time of waiting proposed that they should go in search of spruce gum. They came back laden with sticky spoils, which were shared with their companions.

Fifteen years went by, and the child had grown to be a college senior without again seeing Mr. Blaine. One afternoon she heard him speak at a large public meeting, and at the close of the address she made her way to him. She said simply:

"Mr. Blaine, I don't suppose you will remember me. I am Margaret Sargent."

Quick as a flash came the answer, emphasized with a heavy hand grasp:

"Have you ever tasted any spruce gum since that was as good as that was?"

Of course the recognition made that girl his friend for life. Mr. Blaine was once asked how he acquired the power. He said that he was not conscious of any special effort to gain it unless by cultivating the habit of always thinking over carefully each night the events of the day and the persons who had taken part in them. Probably a brief written record of these would help still further in the strengthening of the power. Certain it is that the confirmed egotist who thinks and talks of nothing outside himself is seldom the owner of the useful memory for the names and faces of others.—Youth's Companion.

The Evolution of the Sword.
As men in early times fought hand to hand, the oldest specimens of the sword are short. In fact, the sword is probably but an evolution of the club, which, at first made of hardwood, was gradually sharpened on one and then on both sides, so as to inflict a more deadly wound. Wood gave way to stone, which in turn was displaced by bronze, iron and finally steel.

The sword increased in length as men became more civilized and showed a disposition to fight farther away from each other, which required more dexterity in the use of the weapon. Some specimens we have of swords of the middle ages are almost if not quite as long as the warriors who wielded them. During the fifteenth century the science of fencing was invented, when the sword in the form of a rapier reached the highest point of development.
